Actually I have a login page from where user can authenticate to the application. What I want to do is whenever a user is logging into the application, the user will be automatically logged into facebook and the application will get the user friend list and that name will be added to database. For example I want to upload my application on C://Users/Pai/Desktop/app/app. So whenever any user is logging in, all the log in request will be taking care by my application and automatically it will login to facebook and take user friend list data from facebook and add that into database. For that I will be using the sample code of facebook C# sdk provided by facebook. Please guide me how to get started. A: I think you can get it with Graph API: Add Open Graph protocol to your web page, see Open Graph Protocol tutorial. Create Facebook application and obtain App ID from here. Make a request to with the ID and password to your Facebook application. Use the AccessToken in the token parameter. I've done that in Java but it should be 1cb139a0ed
