[...] Family Tree Pilot is made with only one goal in mind: to provide an accurate and complete family tree so that you can take control of your future! [...] Best known of all mobile computing devices, the iPad is fast becoming a must-have item for anyone who wants the ease of carrying a laptop computer around on your person, but does not want to carry around a bulky, heavy laptop. Like most tablet computers, iPads come equipped with web browsers to allow you to surf the World Wide Web, read e-mails, read newspapers, check your bank accounts and do whatever else you can think of doing through a computer. On top of that, the iPad will allow you to play games and watch movies on the go. The latest models even boast HD resolution and crisp graphics that you can get on a laptop computer. To help you get the most of your iPad, here are five tips that will enable you to use it for the most:

1. Find your screen orientation One of the things that can hinder your use of your iPad if you don't take the time to find out where the home screen is on your device is that it can be set in either portrait or landscape mode. In portrait mode, your viewing screen will be as wide as your device. In landscape mode, your viewing screen will be as long as your device, and you can move items around the screen using your finger.
2. Finding your way around The iPad can become very bewildering if you have never used a tablet before, so the important thing is to get used to navigating menus using your finger. With an iPad, you will need to tap on each menu item and you will see your selection appear, much like when you are playing a computer game. While you can get back to where you were in the same manner, you should also tap and hold to see a menu appear. When the menu is displayed, you can either go to the home screen or select a menu item. Once you get the hang of the idea, navigation can be fairly simple.
3. Typing To type on the iPad, you will need to switch between the keyboard and a touch-screen keyboard. The keyboard is used when you want to type in an e-mail or message. If you have a stylus, you can use that to write on the touch-screen. When you're using the keyboard, the area you are typing will often be surrounded by thin lines
