* _Photoshop CC: Create multiple edits on a layer._ If you want to do complex edits on a layer or layers, you can create multiple edits on a layer. For instance, you can create a new layer, apply your editing, and then merge it back into the original image. You can take the same edits you made in the previous layer, merge those edits back into the original, and then use the original layer to put them on a different layer. Or you can take the same edits you made in one layer and change the color or angle of the object in another layer. You can even make a separate copy of your image and then make separate edits to different layers of that copy. Photoshop is not the same as the non-computer image-editing program Adobe Photoshop Elements. Elements is a photo-editing program that you can buy and download to your computer. Photoshop is more than just an easy-to-use photo editor. You can use Photoshop to create multi-layered image layers, which then can be used to combine, transform, and alter layers of a multi-layered image. Chapter 11 provides a quick tutorial on layers that you may find helpful for working with Photoshop. * _Photoshop CC: Create a selection and crop an image._ The best way to select an image is to crop it. Cropping reduces the size of an image to be only the area that you want to keep. If you're not familiar with cropping, check out Chapter 9. * _Photoshop CC: Edit and transform images._ Although you can apply more than one transformation to an image, the normal way to do this is to use the Transform tool. Chapter 8 covers transforming images. * _Photoshop CC: Fix color and grayscale problems._ If you're working with color and grayscale images, you need to use various tools to fix the problems caused by the editing process. The chapters in this book can help you to make color and grayscale corrections, including recovering lost detail from a low-quality photo. * _Photoshop CC: Create a painting._ You can create a painting in Photoshop. This effect is called "paint" in the feature, and it works best for creating a creative work of art like a painting, illustration, or graphic. A group of good Samaritans who were attempting to hitch a ride with a truck driver to help a stranded driver were instead caught up in the middle of an epic road rage and shooting fight, according to investigators. The group of five people, who had asked the driver to drop them off at a Dallas-area Super 8 motel on Saturday night, were shot after the driver refused and began shooting at the group. The gunfire struck two of them, who did not suffer life-threatening injuries, according to investigators. Dallas police confirmed the gunshots fired during the shootout, which prompted a pursuit. The truck driver, who was not injured, was able to flee from the scene. The bus driver, a driver for a company that helps get people to jobs, was not injured. The incident happened around 8 p.m. Saturday, when the group of people were attempting to hitch a ride to a Super 8 motel in Garland, near Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. They flagged down the truck driver as he passed a Conoco gas station in Garland. The driver told the five people that he was heading to another destination and refused to drop them off. Police said there were additional occupants inside the truck, including at least one child. The driver called 911, and an officer responded to the Conoco gas station. When the officer arrived on the scene, the truck was unoccupied, but the five people were still inside the back of the truck, investigators said. As officers arrived, the truck driver ran from the scene and jumped into his truck. A chase ensued, but an officer was able to block the truck to prevent the suspect from fleeing. The police officer ordered the suspect to get out of his truck, but a gun was found inside, police said. The man who jumped out of the truck was identified as 25-year-old Joshua Craven, a man with no criminal history. Craven was arrested on charges of aggravated assault, evading arrest and aggravated kidnapping. A passenger with a concealed carry license, James Hunte, and a third man, identified as David Dukes, were also in the truck. When police asked the men why there were five people inside the truck, the men replied that the driver had "brought friends," according to police. The two gunshot victims, who were identified as 28-year-old Nathan Rucker and 29-year-old Robert MacDonald, were taken to a local hospital for treatment of injuries not considered life
